Limelight

Lynn J. Frazier, successful Senatorial candidate in North Dakota primary, on non-partisan ticket. Frazier was former governor of North Dakota and defeated Senator Porter J. McCumber for the Senate election. (c) Harris & Ewing.

Pat has one on most people, for he is 101 years old. This veteran of the civil war, Pat McLaughlin by name, visited the White House as a side trip of his attendance at Richmond, Va., convention. (c) Underwood & Underwood.

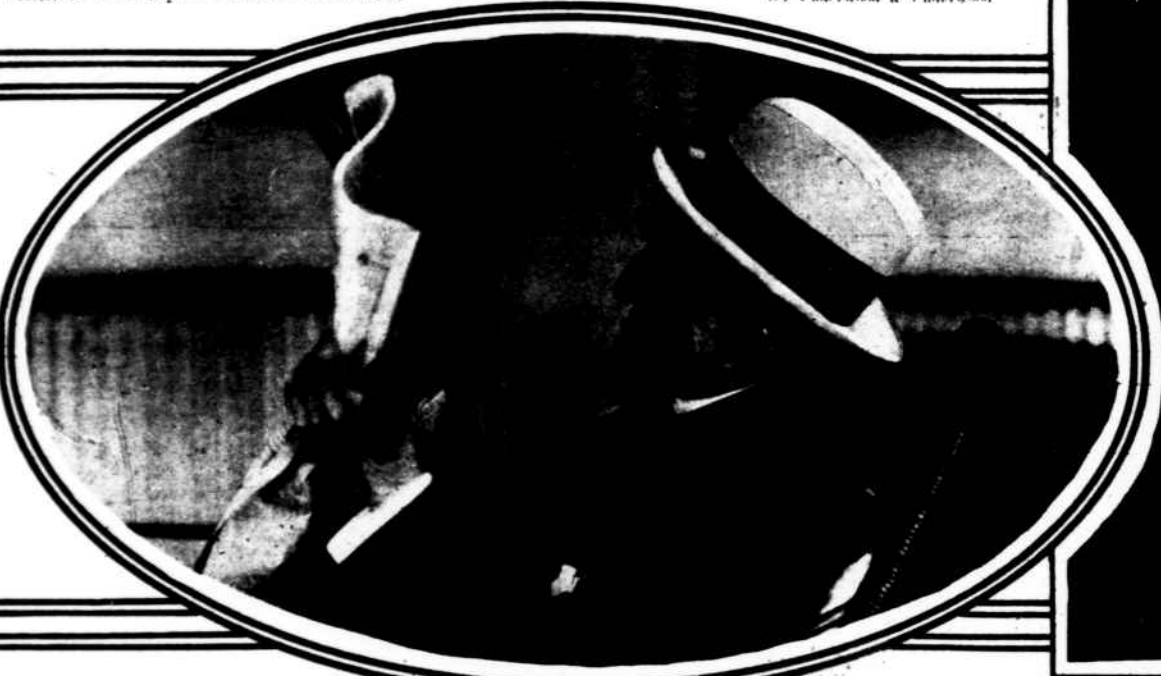

Alexander Hume Ford, director of Pan Pacific Union, now in Washington to gather delegates for Honolulu conference to be held in October. Key men in commerce and finance will attend the conference. (c) Underwood & Underwood.

New Assistant Director of Budget, Royal A. Kloeber, of Virginia. Formerly assistant finance officer under the present chief, Brig. Gen. Herbert M. Lord. (c) Harris & Ewing.

It runs in the family. Law graduates of Georgetown University include this father and two sons, all of whom received a degree. Left to right: Allen C., Benjamin F., Sr., and Benjamin F. Jr., Ryerson. This family law firm will open legal offices immediately.

Chauncey M. Depew, hale and hearty at 88. This grand old man whose opinion is quoted on all world affairs is here shown keeping up with the times at Hot Springs, Va. (c) Underwood & Underwood.

The quiet word was passed between Secretary of Labor Davis and John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers Association, during the recent coal mine operators conference at the White House. The national coal strike was the question at issue.
